Once there lived a happy family of butterflies. The mom and dad's names were Abigail and Ben. Their kids' names were Johnny and Sarah. It was getting close to winter so they started flying south to Mexico.

They finally got to their destination and Abigail said she wanted to stay there forever with the pretty flowers. However, Ben said they couldn't stay too long because they wouldn't be able to explore new places and travel north in the spring.

Once spring arrived, the family went to explore new places. The first place they traveled to was kind of scary because people were trying to catch them! Johnny got caught without the parents noticing and the rest of the family was already flying away. Sarah realized Johnny was gone and told her parents right away. The family tried to find him. They were so happy once they found and rescued Johnny.

The next place they went to in the spring was California. It was the best place they had been to yet because it was warm and had beautiful flowers! The nectar was so sweet! The family was glad to all be together and they lived happily ever after.
