

Detective Peaches

By Zoey Funk

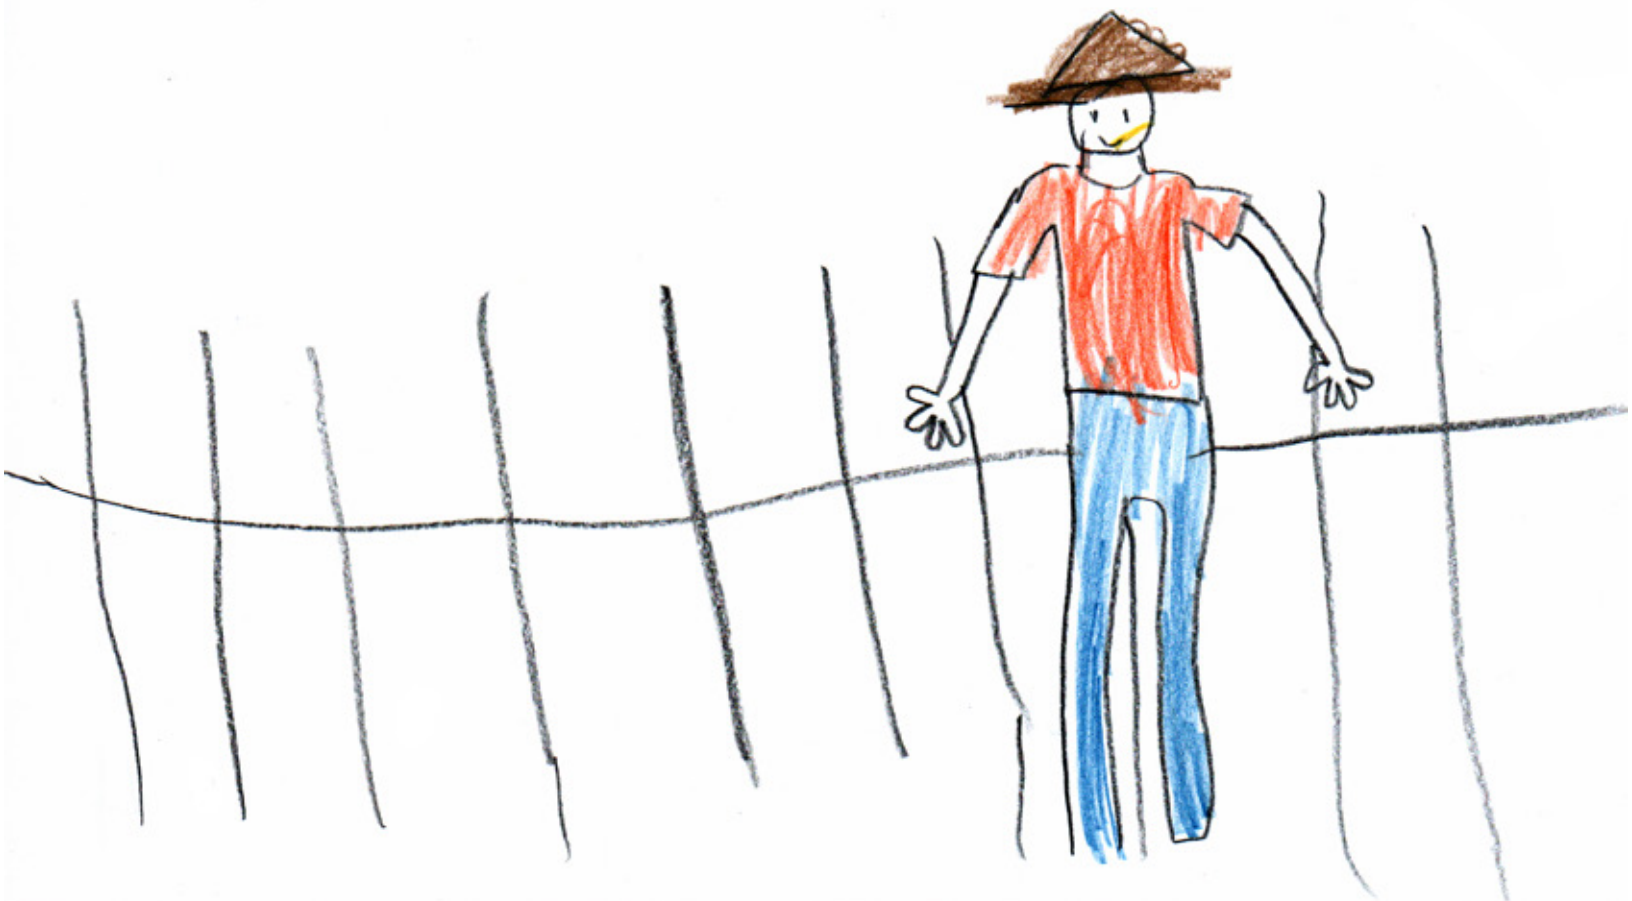

There once was a detective named Peaches. Detective Peaches was different from most detectives. Detective Peaches was a pig. Even though she was a pig, Detective Peaches was the best detective in the country.

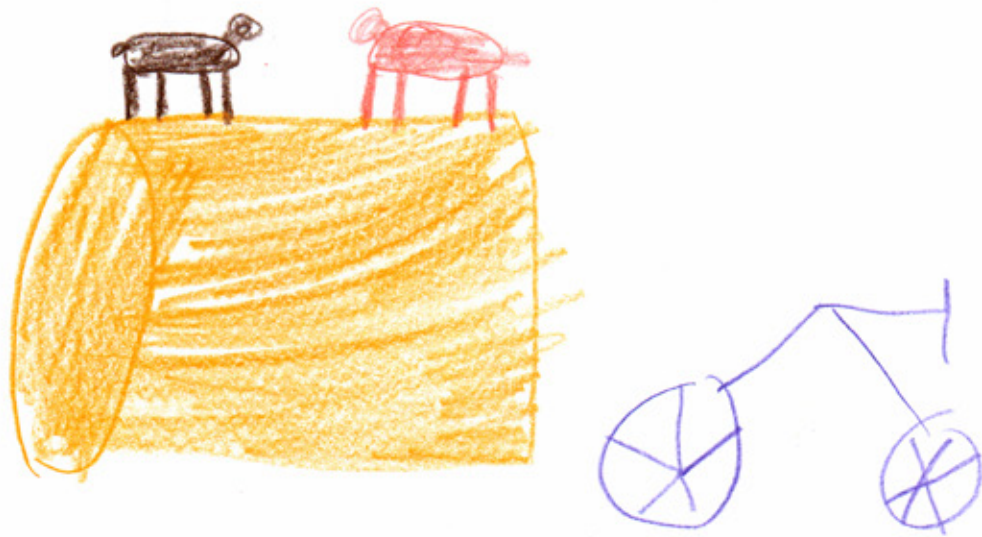

Peaches had a sidekick. A kind, but impatient goat named Brownie. With her sidekick Brownie by her side she was unstoppable.

One day the cows got out of the pen. Farmer Bob was upset when he could not find his cows. They were nowhere to be seen.

The farmer ran to find Peaches and Brownie. When he found them they were in the middle of a secret tea party on top of a hay bale. Farmer bob told them about his missing cows. Peaches jumped up and shouted, "to the detective-mobile".

The first place they searched for the cows was in the fairytale forest. They saw unicorns, fairies, and a fat dragon eating pancakes, but there were no signs of farmer Bob's cows.

The next place they looked for the cows was an underworld sea filled with mermaids and magical sharks. Brownie did not want to go underground so she continued on without Detective Peaches.

Now Detective Peaches had two cases to solve. She needed to find the missing cows and her sidekick. She was running out of daylight and getting very tired.

There was only one place left to look. Detective Peaches knew she had to go to Florida. She used her Rocket boosters to get there extra fast.

When she got to the beach in Florida she was surprised to see the cows and Brownie swimming in the ocean. Detective Peaches decided to join in on the fun before returning the cows to farmer Bob.
